Pastor's Pen

Deacon Ordination This Sunday

Three Sundays ago, we connected with Christians all over the world as we celebrated a ritual of worship that goes back to the very first believers on World Communion Sunday. This Sunday we'll do something similar as we ordain two new deacons in our 10:55 worship service.

Deacons began serving the church in Acts chapter 6, and they have been set apart for leadership and service in churches all over the world ever since. There are only two church leadership roles specifically named and set apart in scripture—pastor and deacon. To be a deacon is to be a participant in a holy, scriptural office of leadership. And, being a deacon means that your peers have acknowledged through their selection of you that you demonstrate the high standards required to be a leader in an organization whose founder and head is Jesus Christ!

For that reason, I remind our congregation every year that there is no higher honor than the honor of being selected to serve as a deacon in a Baptist church. This year we'll install four deacons to new terms of service who previously have been ordained—Proctor Smith, Mark Mitchell, Mason Griffin, and Pat McKee. And, we'll ordain two new deacons—Frank Farmer, Jr. and Josh Tate.

Pray for your new deacons this week. Thank God for their willingness to serve. And thank God for the extraordinary giftedness they bring to the leadership of our church and God's kingdom.

See you Sunday,

Matt

Music Ministry

We had a wonderful weekend of music and fellowship with EnsembleNYC. THANK YOU to the donors, hosts, the meal preparers, and the drivers who shared themselves so generously with my friends from NYC, Chicago, and Boston. They are now OUR friends!

It is great when people can build relationships through shared experiences—we gain greater understanding of the wider world around us. Central is a leader in this through our ministries, missions, and weekly activities. You extended that reach to 22 musicians who will now spread the graciousness that you offered this past weekend.

Gratefully,

Ronnie
